Virtual Learning/Livestreaming Classes Privacy Reminder

Under typical circumstances, our team would prefer to serve students face-to-face. Unfortunately, due to the current COVID-19 public health emergency, there is a need to offer students and families a virtual instructional delivery option for those who choose to or are required to learn from home.

This means our instruction looks different this year. For some classes, teachers will provide large group instruction and live stream this with students at home. At other times, teachers may wish to provide instruction to small groups of students, using virtual formats. We believe this is important in order to provide virtual learning that is as similar to in-person learning opportunities as possible. Some instruction may lend itself to small group instruction, similar to what happens during the in-person school day. For example, in a reading or math class in an in-person classroom, teachers may put students into small groups to provide more specific instruction. In addition, teachers may use small group instruction for virtual discussions or book discussions.

Protecting the privacy of our students is of the utmost importance to the district. Under FERPA and corresponding Wisconsin law, a student's information is protected from disclosure to third parties. Your child's information is confidential, but in a digital format others will have access to your child's image, participation, and possibly the work produced by your child while in the session. All student information is confidential, and we expect that nothing shared or presented in these sessions will be shared with other people outside of the sessions. In order to keep student information confidential, families are expected to respect the privacy of other students; group sessions shall not be recorded (including screenshots), and information regarding other students shall not be shared with others outside of the group session.

If you have questions or concerns about the use of the district's virtual platforms, or the virtual delivery of services in general, please contact your child's principal to discuss your concerns.
